

DEPARTS FROM HIS SET SPEECH

Delegates Give Roosevelt Rousing Demonstration Before He Begins Address.

SAYS WISE CONSERVATIVES ARE WISE PROGRESSIVES

Insists He Stands for a Corrective to Socialism and Antidote to Anarchy.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The session of the national Progressive convention was given over almost entirely to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who, in addition to delivering his long awaited "confession of faith," answered at some length and with a good deal of earnestness a question as to his attitude on the negro question.

The delegates cheered Colonel Roosevelt for more than an hour when he appeared suddenly and rather dramatically upon the platform at the Coliseum. The rafters fairly rang with the noise of the demonstration.

While awaiting the colonel's arrival most of the delegates had joined in an impromptu song that they would follow him wherever he should choose to lead. This was the spirit of the reception accorded the former president when he reached the convention hall and it was this spirit with which his advanced ideas of progressiveness were received as fast as they were uttered.

The doors of the convention hall had been thrown open to the public after Colonel Roosevelt reached the Coliseum and the big auditorium held one of its greatest crowds. The rush for places was so great that the fire marshal soon ordered the doors closed.

There were thrills, too, when Colonel Roosevelt was interrupted several times with questions.

A few minutes after Colonel Roosevelt reached the Coliseum stage the vacant space in the galleries quickly filled and standing room came to be at a premium.

ANE ADDAMS JOINS COLONEL ON PLATFORM.

From the Illinois delegation Miss Anne Addams was lifted up over the press stand, climbed up the platform and joined the colonel. He greeted her with a handshake and she took her place beside him. Way up in the gallery the musicians struck up "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and from the delegates the words of the hymn rose in a confused murmur.

The colonel stepped forward, raised both hands and led the singing, chanting the words himself. As the song was concluded Mrs. Sunderland of Los Angeles, an elderly woman, briskly scaled the platform.

Two Alabama delegates, one a union veteran, the other a Confederate, marched up to the platform, arm in arm, and shook hands with Colonel Roosevelt. They were J. C. Hollingsworth, who served in Lee's army, and John H. Green, who fought in an Illinois regiment.

"Give us a Southern Democrat for vice president and we'll break the old South," they told Colonel Roosevelt.

"Good," the colonel responded. "I'll be very best."

The excitement subsided a trifle, but it broke out again as the band swung into the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Colonel Roosevelt led the crowd in the singing.

Timothy L. Woodruff, clad in a blue flannel suit, defied the cool easter and led the New York delegation in cheering.

Chairman Beveridge tried to quiet the tumult with his gavel, but each "bang" brought only more cheers.

SHAKES HANDS WITH TWO NEGRO DELEGATES

Two negroes wearing delegates' badges climbed on the stage. The official negro question was in the hands of the crowd and as the colonel reached out a hand to each of the negroes those around them fell back, or a minute the three stood in a little knot. The colonel gesticulated and talked excitedly, the negroes listening, their faces serious.

As the colonel concluded one of the negroes reached over and patted him on the shoulder.

Frank H. Funk, Progressive nominee for governor of Illinois, strode to the front of the platform and threw into the crowd a battered sombrero. The "hat's in the ring," he shouted, and again the crowd's cheering grew deafening.

In one of the galleries appeared W. A. Davis of Chicago, the hand-mover in who invaded the floor of the Republican convention and led a Roosevelt demonstration. She was cheered by the delegates and was hurried to the platform, where Colonel Roosevelt shook hands with her.

The demonstration had been in progress forty-five minutes, when the delegates recognized Mrs. Roosevelt in a box. They turned to her with a cheer and she rose and bowed her acknowledgment. She waved to the colonel on the platform and he waved back with his red bandana.

Both Mr. Beveridge and Colonel Roosevelt made ineffectual attempts to quiet the crowd and the colonel wiped his forehead nervously with his bandana. An outburst of handclapping and the long, low moan of the "bull moose" call interrupted just as Chairman Beveridge obtained partial quiet.

DEMONSTRATION LASTS FIFTY-SEVEN MINUTES

Order was finally restored, the demonstration having continued fifty-seven minutes. When the crowd was quiet a flashlight picture of the scene was taken.

Colonel Roosevelt had spoken but a few words before he began to interpolate new matter in his prepared address.

"We want to say to those who want their conservatism," he said, "that we are the real conservatives."

The delegates sat in somewhat amazed silence as the colonel paused. The situation was relieved and there was a great cheer as he added:

"For the only wise conservative is the wise progressive."

At another time the colonel departed from his speech to pay a tribute to the veterans of the Civil war.

"Friends," he said, "it was of real significance that this convention should have been opened by the drums and fifes of the men who in their youth defied everything for the great principle of waging battle for a worthy cause. And beside the men of blue stood the men of gray."

"We intend to show that in the new party the national committee fills the function of the servant and not the master," said the colonel further along in the interpolated portion of his address. Reference to the initiative, referendum and recall brought forth cheers.

"We have recalled Penrose," shouted a man on the platform, and the colonel added: "We will keep him recalled."

URGES THE RECALL OF INCOMPETENT JUDGES

Colonel Roosevelt departed most frequently from his manuscript when discussing the judiciary. He spoke of the recall of the "incompetent" judges and said he used the adjective "in its polite and general sense."

"I'm not attacking the judges," he added. "I am upholding the hands of the honest judge."

The delegates cheered for several minutes when Colonel Roosevelt declared that instead of advocating Socialism or anarchy he really was urging "a corrective to Socialism and antidote to anarchy."

After talking an hour and a quarter Colonel Roosevelt started to close his speech. He had omitted about one-half of the prepared speech and some one pointed out that he had forgotten to discuss the tariff.

"That's so," he exclaimed. "I've left out the tariff. But I don't want to take up the time of the convention and copies of the complete speech will be distributed later."

"Go on, go on," shouted the delegates and the colonel went back to his speech.

"I am for a protective tariff," he said, and a cheer interrupted him. His tariff views, particularly his endorsement of the tariff commission scheme, were applauded.

When the colonel had finished outbursts of cheers and applause greeted him and the men on the platform crowded about the colonel, wringing his hand.

OLLIE JAMES A HUMORIST

Says "Bull Moose" Should Be "Bull Loose."

Washington, Aug. 7.—"The name bull moose as applied to Colonel Roosevelt is a misnomer," said Senator Elect Ollie James of Kentucky, who was permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention at Baltimore. "Bull moose nothing! It should be 'bull loose' and the Republican party is the china shop."

DURBIN AGAINST BEVERIDGE

Republicans Name Him to Head Indiana Ticket.

Indianapolis, Aug. 7.—Colonel Winfield T. Durbin of Anderson, former governor of Indiana, was nominated by the state Republican convention to head the ticket in the coming campaign on a platform praising the administration and pledging support of President Taft, declaring for the re-enactment of the county option law repealed two years ago and advocating primary elections and woman's suffrage.

NEW YORK GAMBLER WRITES CONFESSION

Gives District Attorney Details of Graft Collections.

New York, Aug. 7.—Bald Jack Rose, the gambler upon whose testimony chiefly was based the indictment of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker on the charge of investigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, furnished District Attorney Whitman with a written statement disclosing in detail the history of his relations with Becker as one of the police officer's alleged graft collectors.

Rose in his confession, as the district attorney terms it, reiterates his previous allegation that Becker was one of four high police officers who collected between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 yearly from illegal resorts and gives a complete table of his collections from gamblers, which, he says, he turned over to Becker.

These collections, according to the "confession," averaged from $12,000 to $15,000 a month and came from a dozen or more gambling houses. The names of about ten of them Rose gave to the district attorney.

The search of both the police and the district attorney's detectives for Gyp the Blood and Lefty Louis, wanted as Rosenthal's actual murderers, has thus far proved fruitless.

TOO TOUGH FOR SENATORS

McCumber Says Few Could Pass Civil Service Tests.

Washington, Aug. 7.—"If the members of the senate had to take civil service examinations I am convinced few of them could reach the rating of 75 per cent," declared Senator McCumber, supporting the proposed seven-year tenure and merit system for civil service employees.

The plan, embodied in the conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, was the subject of a renewed fight. Senator Burton characterized the limited term as the "twin brother of the spoils system."

WILSON MEETS MARSHALL

Democratic Nominees Greet Each Other Heartily.

Seagirt, N. J., Aug. 7.—Governor Woodrow Wilson, presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, met Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, the vice presidential nominee, at a seaside hotel at Spring Lake, two miles from here. It was the first time the two governors had seen each other within a year. Their greetings were hearty.

Governor Marshall came to attend the ceremonies at Seagirt in which Governor Wilson will be notified of his nomination for the presidency and will deliver a keynote speech of acceptance.

La Follette to Take It Easy.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—Advises received here from Washington by close friends of Senator La Follette say that the senior senator will return to his farm as soon as congress adjourns. It isn't expected that Senator La Follette will take part in the campaign.

VETO MESSAGES IN PROSPECT

They May Become as Regular as Last Summer.

IF TARIFF CONFEREES AGREE.

Senator Newlands Has a Proposition For Utilizing the Revenue in Excess of the Government's Needs—Threat of Delivery of Political Speeches Gets Permission to Have Them Printed.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Veto messages may become as regular as last summer if the conferees on the different tariff bills can reach any kind of an agreement which will send the several bills to the White House. Far be it from me to suspect any ulterior motives in members of congress, but I have an idea that there are mighty few men on either side of the political alignment or in either house who really want any of the tariff bills which have been passed to become laws.

There are reasons for this belief. In the first place, tariff bills which would meet the approval of the president could be proposed if those in power in both houses could agree upon the propositions. Then, be it known, if any of these bills or all of them should be signed by the president, what would different parties do for a campaign issue on the tariff? Here would be tariffs originating in a Democratic house, accepted by a mixed senate and signed by a Republican president! Under such conditions the tariff might be removed from politics. That would be a great calamity—to those who get elected on the tariff issue.

The Practical Newlands.

Senator Newlands has been called visionary and fifty years ahead of the times in his theories. Yet he seems to be very practical in his legislative proposals. When the different tariff bills were being passed he made inquiry as to the revenue that would be raised and found that it would be many millions in excess of the needs of the government. Newlands then proposed an amendment setting apart this surplus for storing waters, preventing floods and a general scheme of internal waterway improvement. "What is the use of raising this money and piling it up in the treasury?" asked the practical Nevada senator. "If you put it to a good use there will be little or no complaint about raising it." But he couldn't even get enough supporters for his amendment to order a roll call.

Political "Leave to Print."

More than half a dozen members asked "leave to print" and others were about to follow when the watchful minority leader thought it was a good time to object. "Are these to be political speeches?" he asked. Of course they were. "I think these speeches," remarked Howard of Georgia, "will be attacks on bull moose features of politics."

"That makes no difference to me," replied Mann, who is suspected of having a leaning toward Roosevelt.

"Would you prefer to listen to these speeches or let them be printed in the Record?" asked Buchanan of Illinois. That settled it. Threat of delivery of these political speeches made Mann give way.

Repealing Reciprocity.

The senate has several times gone on record as favoring the repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act which Canada repudiated. The house as at present constituted is responsible to a certain degree for that act, and it will not accept the repeal. No one seems to have much use for reciprocity in the senate.

Against Annexation.

We will never have an opportunity to try out just how popular would be the annexation of Canada, but we have heard Champ Clark say that it would suit him, and the president's remark was once construed to mean annexation. The subject came up in the senate in connection with Canadian reciprocity, and Senator McCumber, who is very much opposed to reciprocity, favored annexation. Senator Bacon, who favors reciprocity, was just as strongly opposed to annexation. "In years gone by," said the Georgia senator, "I had a feeling that I would like to have Canada as a part of this country, but not now. This country is big enough. Neither Canada nor the United States should now desire annexation."

Cause Removed.

Members of the house were discussing the difficulty of maintaining a quorum. "The peculiar conditions existing heretofore," said Fitzgerald of New York, "requiring the presence of many members elsewhere on account of important business after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, no longer exist."

"The gentleman is satisfied that we can depend upon bulletins for the news we desire to get?" inquired former Speaker Cannon.

The winning streak of the Washington ball team was referred to in these remarks. When the team was playing in Washington a quorum could not be held in the house.

Shively's Misgivings.

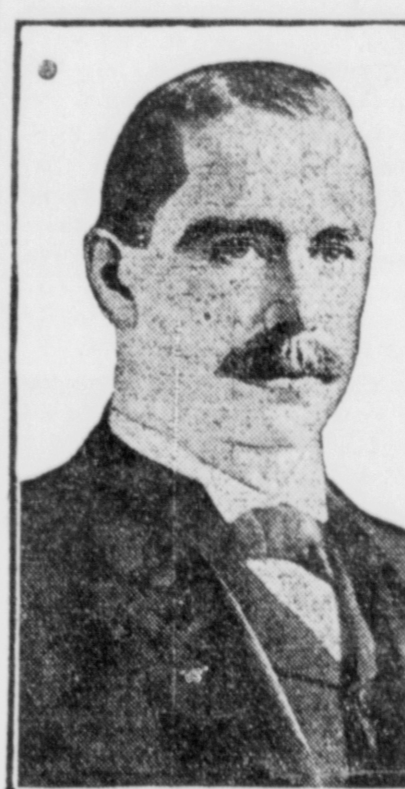

Replying to a question, Senator Shively said that the prospect of Democratic success in Indiana was better than ever. "And there's the danger," he added. "Folks often go to sleep because they are so sure."

Mute Animals.

The giraffe, armadillo and porcupine have no vocal cords and are therefore mute.

W. S. COWHERD.

May Be Democratic Nominee for Governor of Missouri.

LESS MISSOURI REPUBLICANS

Statewide Primary Shows Many New Third Party Men.

St. Louis, Aug. 7.—Voting in the Missouri statewide primary was light. Interest centered in the gubernatorial nomination, which five Democrats sought. W. S. Cowherd of Kansas City and Attorney General Elliott M. Major were leading, but no definite figures were received.

Apathy was noted in the Republican party. Many former Republicans did not vote and gave the reason that they had cast their lot with the new third party.

All of the present representatives from Missouri were candidates for re-nomination and in nine of the districts the incumbents had no opposition.

SETTLES SOUTHERN NEGRO QUESTION

Convention Unseats Mississippi and Florida Delegates.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The troublesome Southern negro question which for a time threatened dissension in the first convention of the National Progressive party, finally was disposed of when the convention itself, without a dissenting voice and without discussion, adopted the report of the credentials committee, unseating the white and negro delegates from Florida and throwing out the negro delegates from Mississippi.

Colonel Roosevelt, during his "confession of faith" at the convention, was heckled by a spectator who interrupted with the demand:

"What about the negro question?"

Instantly the convention was in an uproar, but Colonel Roosevelt silenced those of his friends who objected to the question with the statement that no one could ask him a question he was afraid of. The colonel then proceeded at some length to state his views on the negro question. He declared he hoped conditions might soon improve in the South that at future Progressive conventions those states might send as delegates negroes who would have the character and standing of the negro delegates from West Virginia, who, he asserted, were in these respects the equal of their white associates.

In taking the stand he did to bar the negroes sent from the South as contesting delegates to the political convention Colonel Roosevelt asserted he was stilling in advance conditions which had led to "the crushing disaster and death of the great Republican party itself."

SUCCUMBS TO HYDROPHOBIA

Skill of Medical Men Fails to Save Minneapolis Man.

Minneapolis, Aug. 7.—After a courageous fight for life lasting forty-eight hours Orie O. Whited, fifty-eight years old, twenty-two years resident of Minneapolis, died of hydrophobia. Four physicians pitted the skill of medical science in vain against the advance of the disease. Death ensued notwithstanding Mr. Whited had just finished the intensive Pasteur treatment for hydrophobia at the University of Minnesota. Cause of death was given as exhaustion resulting from the continuous paroxysms of the throat and respiratory muscles.

Mr. Whited was bitten by a pet coach dog July 7.

ROOSEVELT MEN WIN IN KANSAS

ROOSEVELT SAYS HE FEELS HAPPY

Reception at Progressive Convention Pleases Colonel.

DISCARDS HIS BIG FELT HAT

Silk Tie Adorns Head of Rough Rider for First Time in Many Months and He Dons Frock Coat Instead of Customary Sack Suit—Governor Johnson of California Will Receive Vice Presidential Nomination.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was in a happy frame of mind; happy, he said, over the reception he received at the national Progressive convention and happy over the fact that he will be nominated for the presidency.

"I understand," he said laughingly, "that I am a neck ahead."

Colonel Roosevelt will go to the convention again after the nominations have been made and in a brief speech will accept the honor. The ceremony probably will do away with the necessity for a formal notification ceremony.

There seems no change in the plan to nominate Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California as the colonel's running mate. A vice presidential boom for Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Colorado gained some headway, but has been practically abandoned.

No Southern Democrat aligned with the new party seemed to stand out sufficiently in the minds of the leaders to offset the insistent demand among the delegates for Governor Johnson.

Impressed With Reception.

"I am so glad," said Colonel Roosevelt, "that I had an opportunity in the convention to express my views of the negro question. I was delighted at the interruption, for it gave me the chance I wanted. I think the question is disposed of now. I was deeply impressed with my reception by the delegates. By George, it was fine!"

Colonel Roosevelt dressed in ultra-formal fashion for his visit to the convention. He discarded his big felt hat for a silk one for the first time in many months and wore a frock coat instead of the customary sack suit. Crowds followed him wherever he went and so many state delegations called on him that he had but little time for conference with the convention leaders.

More than a score of negroes called on Colonel Roosevelt to assure him that they would support him in the stand he had taken on the negro question. Some of them were delegates, the colonel said, and others had been refused seats in the convention.

"I suppose that thirty negroes have come to see me since I returned from the convention hall," said Colonel Roosevelt. "To say that they were pleased that I had shown them what they should do."

Progressives Nominate Eight Presidential Electors.

CAMPBELL MAY LOSE SEAT

Congressman Who Has Been a Staunch Supporter of President Taft Is Running Behind His Progressive Opponent—Contest Between Curtis and Stubbs for United States Senator Appears Close.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 7.—Progressivism swept Kansas in the primary election. The eight presidential electors who had declared allegiance to Theodore Roosevelt were nominated, and returns indicate Representative P. P. Campbell was defeated in his struggle to retain his seat in congress. H. M. Gray, a progressive, has a lead over Campbell, who has been a staunch supporter of President Taft.

The contest for the seat in the United States senate now held by Charles Curtis, in which Curtis was opposed by Governor W. R. Stubbs, is close and will require returns from distant western counties to decide it. Both candidates claim nomination.

Representative D. R. Anthony ran close race with W. I. Stewart, progressive, in the First district, and more detailed returns will be required.

PHILIP P. CAMPBELL.

to decide the winner, although Anthony appeared to have retained his seat.

Arthur Capper, publisher of the Topeka Capital, was chosen the Republican nominee for governor by a large majority. George H. Hodges is leading for the Democratic nomination, with J. B. Billiard, the candidate who favored resubmission of the liquor question, his closest opponent. Other Democratic returns are not available, as the Republican ballots were counted first.

Owing to the length of the ballot and the large number of names of candidates upon it it is impossible to estimate majorities in figures. Those probably will not be known for several days.

COLONEL IS MUCH PLEASED

Says It Shows How Kansas Feels About "Fraudulent Nomination."

Chicago, Aug. 7.—When told he had carried the Kansas primaries Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I am very much pleased. This is an interesting commentary on how Kansas feels about the fraudulent nomination."

CAR HITS POLE; TWO KILLED

Third Member of Party May Die of Injuries.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—Two were killed, one fatally injured and another escaped without a scratch when an automobile struck a telegraph pole. Attorney D. A. Haggard, of Broadway & Haggard, has been asked by Judge Bunn, Judge T. D. O'Brien and Secretary Clarence W. Halbert, trustees of the St. Paul College of Law, to teach at the college this season. Mr.
Haggard formerly taught elementary law at the school and this season, from September 15 to January 1 will handle this subject including that of contracts. Mr. Haggard will spend alternate weeks at the school, dividing his time between his school duties and his law practice in Brainerd.

Brainerd should appreciate its local gymnasium. Every visiting team thinks the Brainerd boys are lucky to have such a good opportunity to get in good condition. The boys expect to have just as good a football team and basket ball team as they have a baseball nine, and there is no reason why Brainerd should not be in the front ranks in all athletic sports, for we have the material and the place to work.
Commencing September 1 Mr. Ridley will have a first class gymnasium man and rubber at the establishment and also a man to teach swimming.

The complimentary concert and dance given by the Elks lodge last night was a most enjoyable social function. The music furnished by the popular Troubadours orchestral troupe was of a high order. The quartette of musicians included a first violin, second violin, harp and flute.
The program embraced selections by the quartette and solos by the flute, harp and violin. A reader accompanied them and gave three selections, one a Scotch dialect story relating Saunders' wooing; a child impersonation and a con song. After the program, the orchestra played for a dance and the Elks and their ladies enjoyed a delightful time.

Exemption From Taxation

The state constitution provides that property used for certain specified purposes shall be exempt from taxation. Exempt property may be divided into four general classes, (1) educational, (2) religious, (3) charitable, and (4) public.

In addition to the above, there may be exempted from taxation personal property not exceeding in value $200 for each household, individual or head of a family, as the legislature may determine.

Property used for educational purposes includes public libraries, public school houses, academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning. Property leased to an educational institution, however, or property owned by such an institution
but not devoted to or necessary for its use is not exempt from taxation.

Church property includes all churches and houses of worship and the land necessary for the proper use and enjoyment of the same. Mere ownership by a church, however, does not necessarily exempt the property from taxation. Under the decisions of the courts a parsonage or a rectory belonging to a church, even though used in part for religious services, is not exempt from taxation;
nor is land or other property owned by a church but not used for church purposes exempt property.

Property used for charitable purposes includes public hospitals, and all institutions of purely public charity, such as almshouses, homes for orphans, the aged or dependents, and all other property devoted exclusively to public charity.

Public property includes all property of the federal and state governments, and the property of each municipality of the state used for public purposes. Property owned by a municipality but not used or necessary for public purposes is not exempt from taxation.

In a general way it may be said that it is the use, not the ownership, that determines the question of exemption. Constitutional provisions governing exemptions, and statutory laws based on the constitution, are strictly construed by the courts.
Such exemptions are regarded as an abrogation of part of the sovereignty of the state, and they are consequently confined to the strict letter of the constitution, and can neither be enlarged nor extended by legislative enactment.

Notwithstanding these restrictions
the legislature has from time to time enacted laws exempting from taxation other classes of property not embraced in the constitutional provision. It has, for instance, attempted to exempt the property of incorporated district and county agricultural societies, and the buildings and other property owned and used exclusively by beneficiary associations and fraternal beneficiary associations, as well as an additional personal property exemption of $100 for each member of the national guard.

These laws are clearly unconstitutional and fail to accomplish the purpose for which they were enacted.
As already stated, the legislature has no authority, either directly or indirectly, to exempt property or persons from taxation except as authorized by the constitution, it is held by the legal department of the state that a legislative enactment attempting to do so is null and void.

The constitutional provision relating to personal property exemption leaves it optional with the legislature to decide whether there shall or shall not be any such exemption, and if any, the amount thereof, not exceeding $200. The legislature may also determine whether the exemption shall apply to each household, individual or head of a family.
The present exemption of $100 applies to each individual subject to a personal property assessment.

There is considerable abuse of the personal property exemption in some districts of the state. Not a few people attempt to list their personal property in the name of several members of the family. In some cases called to the attention of the tax commission personal property was divided among as many as six members of a family when the actual and bona fide owner was the head of the family.

This practice is a serious violation of law and is punishable by fine or imprisonment. Section 5033, Revised Laws of 1905, provides that every person who, in making any statement, oral or written, which is required or authorized by law to be made as a basis of imposing or reducing any tax or assessment, who shall wilfully make any statement as to any material matter which he knows to be false, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor.

It's just as important that you be clean inside as outside—more so, in fact. Unless your system is entirely cleansed of all impurities, you cannot be one hundred per cent healthy, physically or mentally. Holister's Rocky Mountain Tea is the greatest systemic cleanser known.

NAVAL DISCIPLINE.

Punishments That Are Meted Out to British Sailors.

For infraction of regulations some curious punishments are meted out in the English navy. It is an every day occurrence, says the London Tit-Bits, to see half a dozen sailors lined up on deck facing the paint work, holding their hammocks on their shoulders. At first the hammock isn't heavy, but after an hour or so it drags on one's shoulders like lead. Besides, it is not at all entertaining to stare fixedly at a square foot of painted woodwork for an hour or more at a time.

Another punishment that Jack de-spises is bailing with a spoon. He is placed upon the deck, with two large wooden buckets, one filled with water and the other empty. With a spoon he must dip all the water from one bucket and transfer it to the other, being meanwhile the butt of his comrades' jests and jeers.

Sometimes a delinquent is made to walk slowly backward and forward along the deck, nursing in his arms a six inch projectile, weighing a little over 100 pounds. Once a sailor who laughed at the stammering speech of his commander was made to stand upon the forebridge in full view of the ship's crew and laugh for an hour and a half.

Spitting upon the deck of a man-of-war is strictly prohibited. Cuspidors are placed at intervals along the deck, and these must be used. Upon some ships when a sailor is caught spitting upon the deck a small tub is strapped to his chest, and he is made to wear it.
Any one who chooses may use this walking receptacle. The offender thus punished rarely repeats his offense.

BALZAC'S BACK DOOR.

It Was Convenient When Creditors Became Too Insistent.

In the year 1848 or thereabout, being worried by duns in Paris, Balzac took lodgings in Passy, then a village in the environs, at a house in the Rue Basse. There is little remarkable about the front of the house. It is just a plain, white, two storied French dwelling of a hundred years ago or of today for that matter.

But at the back is a garden, and at the bottom of the garden is a doorway leading into one of the oldest lanes in the world, from the look of it. Truly, this rue, with its crumbling walls of stone and plaster, its ivy and its shade of overhanging trees, is as happily devoid of suggestions of modern "improvements" as anything to be found within the suburbs of Paris.

By means of this byway Balzac, when insistent voices from within the house reached his ears as he worked in his little pavilion at the end of the garden, could avoid the unpleasantness of an interview with any holder of the overdue bills which throughout his life were the only tangible results of his experiments as a printer and type-founder.

It needs but little imagination to see him hurry off down the lane, hatless and in slippers, to await events, while he dreams of exploiting the jewels of the Golconda or the silver mines of the new world.

A Smoke Inspector.

A Chicago politician imported his cousin from the old country and had him appointed a smoke inspector. This was in the old days. He was turned loose to inspect without any instruction whatever, and this is the report he rendered at the end of the first month:

"I certify that I have inspected the smoke of this city for the thirty days past. I find plenty of smoke and same is apparently of good quality. Respectfully submitted."—Pittsburgh Post.

LARGE CROWD GOES TO THE PICNIC

Seven Coaches and Caboose Filled with Picnickers as Special Pulls Out for Deerwood

MERCHANTS & CLERKS JUBILEE

Brainerd City Band and the Unity Band Give a Concert at Depot and on the Train

With seven coaches and the caboose of the Merchants & Clerks special train packed to the doors, bands playing and flags flying, the train pulled out of Brainerd at 9:40 A. M. for Deerwood where the second annual picnic of the merchants and clerks will be duly celebrated.

Most of Brainerd boarded the train and it's a lonely town here today. All the news and excitement has been shifted to Deerwood, the picnic center.

The Brainerd City band and the Unity band played selections at the depot and on the train. The picnic committees hustled about completing arrangements and pinning Brainerd badges on the crowd. Every man, woman and child of Brainerd was tagged so that the town of Deerwood could count them and see what a crowd had been sent down.

One of the interesting events of the day will be the baseball game between the merchants and the clerks which may be played in the morning. Both sides have practiced earnestly for this struggle and each is bent on winning the $22.50 cash prize, the cigars and the other trophies offered. An interesting program of sports has been arranged and prizes of considerable value are offered.

Deerwood has outdone itself in the attractions offered to the visitors. Citizens have not stinted themselves to donate cash and time to make the day pleasant for the Brainerd visitors.

The weather is cool and slight showers may be probable, but whatever rain may fall will not be sufficient to mar the day.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

News of Tourists Visiting City—Local Items—Trade Notes From the Garages

John Kregelberg has bought a new car, a 22 horsepower Buick. The body of the car is painted a vivid red and it is a fine machine for the roads in this county.

R. L. Train, Wilson Boley, Mrs. A. D. Train and Miss E. M. Boley, of Kansas City, Mo., motored to Brainerd yesterday.

John Wahl and John Kregelberg went to Deerwood this afternoon in the latter's car.

Charles Erickson, riding a four horsepower motorcycle, set out for Deerwood at the same time the special pulled out and expected to travel faster than the train and come in first at the picnic town.

"If there is one place that should be improved in your county," said George J. Silk, the editor of the Pine River Sentinel, "it is the stretch of road leading to Gull lake. In the whole route from St. Paul to the Itasca State park there isn't a worse section of highway. It is simply fierce. Stumps stick out in the road within three inches of your running board. Trees and branches block the road and if you traveled without a windshield you would have your eyes poked out. R. R. Wise was instrumental in having bark peelings laid on three miles of the Gull lake road and this worked a great improvement in part of the road."

THE BEST THINGS.

The best things are nearest—breath in your nostrils, light in your eyes, flowers at your feet, duties at your hand, the path of God just before you. Then do not strive to grasp at the stars, but do life's plain, common work as it comes, certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things of life.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Clarence B. Stickney, of Brainerd, and Miss Henrietta Erickson, of Lake City, Married

The Lake City Graphic-Republican of August 6 states: "The home of Mrs. Matilda Erickson was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday afternoon, August 1, when her daughter, Henrietta, became the wife of Clarence B. Stickney, of Brainerd, Minn.

The bride was charming in a dress of white embroidered voile over white satin, and her flowers were bride's roses and ferns. The house was decorated with a profusion of palms, cut flowers and trailing vines. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Julia Johnson, as the bride, escorted by her brother, Milton, entered the parlor and took her place beside the groom.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. O. J. Nelson, using the ring service. After congratulations and greetings the company sat down to a sumptuous wedding supper. The happy couple left on the evening train for a sojourn at the Great Lakes, after which they will be at home in Brainerd, where the groom is employed in the postoffice.

Mrs. W. E. Stickney and Robert A. Stickney, mother and brother of the groom, were the out-of-town guests.

BRAINERD NATIONAL BAND PICNIC

Excursion on the Steamers Myrtis M. and Ranger North on the Mississippi River

TO THE DR. J. L. CAMP FARM

Program For the Day Includes Band Concert, Dinner, Dancing and Program of Amusements

The Brainerd National band of Southeast Brainerd will give a picnic on Sunday, August 18 in the vicinity of the Dr. J. L. Camp farm on the Mississippi river. The band has chartered the steamers Myrtis M. and the Ranger and it is believed that 300 people will enjoy the pleasant river trip and the picnicking.

The program for the day includes a band concert by the Brainerd National band of 18 pieces under the leadership of Jack Moilanen, a sumptuous dinner, more band music, dancing and a program of amusements. The dancing is scheduled to commence at three o'clock in the afternoon. The boats will make their return to Brainerd at about nine o'clock in the evening.

The band will meet at the Cooperative store company hall Sunday morning and march to the dock. Tickets are now being sold for the event and it promises to be a great time in the annals of the band.

MINNESOTA STATE ELKS GATHERING

Association Meets at Fergus Falls on August 20, 21 and 22—The Program Offered

A BIG THREE DAY CELEBRATION

St. Cloud Lodge Reception for Visitors Enroute to Fergus Falls, on Monday Evening, Aug. 19

The Minnesota State Elks' association meets at Fergus Falls on Aug. 20, 21 and 22 and many of Brainerd's antlered brethren will attend the festivities.

Tuesday, August 20, will be registration day. There will be an afternoon reception of visitors and in the evening an informal dance at the Elks' club.

On Wednesday the visitors will be given auto rides to points of interest. The association will hold a business session and ladies reception. In the afternoon a baseball game between Fergus Falls and St. Cloud is scheduled and this will be no tame affair as St. Cloud is "after the persimmons." A social session will be held in the evening.

On Thursday the day will be spent at beautiful Swan lake. There will be a picnic lunch, boating, fishing, water sports, swimming contests and bathing. This will be followed by a dance at the Elks' club till the trains go.

St. Cloud lodge, No. 516, has arranged to give visitors enroute to Fergus Falls a reception at their hall on Monday evening, August 19.

Will Make Long Trip

The St. Cloud Journal-Press has the following to say regarding an automobile party that passed through Brainerd last Saturday:

"George Thompson, publisher of the Pioneer Press and Dispatch, passed through the city this morning on his way to Lake Itasca. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, daughter Florence, Miss Mildred Robertson and the chauffeur. The trip is being made in a big six-cylinder Oldsmobile built especially for Mr. Thompson. Upon their return to St. Paul arrangements are being made for a trip around the world, and it was for that purpose that the machine was constructed."

HOW CANADA CHECKS FIRES

Special to Dispatch:

Edmonton, Alta., Aug. 7—Railroad companies operating in the province of Alberta are held liable for every forest fire starting within 300 yards of their rights of way and in the event it gets beyond control their men must fight it for at least 10 miles, being also responsible for the cost of the work and the resultant damage to public and private property. The foregoing is embodied in an order issued by Clyde Leavitt, chief fire inspector for the board of railway commissioners, effective on the Canadian Pacific line, and on the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern lines.

The railroads are ordered to patrol the fire districts regularly, going over the road from two to four times daily, the men being employed by the companies. The department of the interior has appointed an inspector, whose duty it is to see that the work is carried on properly. Velocipedes will be used in the northern districts of the province, the fire rangers going over their patrols 30 minutes after the passing of each train. A hundred men will be required to do the work.

The companies have also been advised to instruct passengers to assist in the work of minimizing the danger from forest fires by refraining from throwing lighted cigars or cigarettes from trains.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, etc. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BEST ARMY SHOE FOUND.

X Ray Utilized After Marches to Choose Easiest on Feet.

Unique experiments in the army have resulted in the recommendation for adoption of what is considered the best shoe for preserving the natural shape of the foot and insuring the comfort of the wearer.

The X ray was utilized in the experiments, pictures being made of the feet of thousands of soldiers before the shoes were tested. Then various army shoes were put on the soldiers, who were sent on long hikes. Pictures were taken after the marches to show the condition of the feet. The tests continued until a shoe was found which left the bones in their normal condition after the strain of long marches.

The shoe recommended is made on a straight last with a rounded toe.

Candidates for President and Vice President on Socialist Ticket to Speak Here

MAY SPEAK IN OPERA HOUSE

Finnish Local of Southeast Brainerd Has Been Instrumental in Getting the Speakers

Two of the most noted speakers and leaders in the ranks of the socialists, Eugene V. Debs, candidate for president and Emil Seidel, the late socialist mayor of Milwaukee, Wis., and candidate for the vice presidency on their party ticket, will speak at Brainerd Sunday night, Aug. 18.

The Finnish local of Southeast Brainerd has been instrumental in getting Mr. Seidel here in company with Mr. Debs and the meeting will probably be held in the opera house.

Both of these men are good orators and their message will be listened to with attention, even if their auditors may entertain different views. Mr. Debs has spoken in Brainerd within recent years and in his youth visited Brainerd at different periods. It will be former Mayor Seidel's first visit in this city.

BASEBALL NOTES

Says the St. Cloud Times: "Manager Robbers of the Benton County team, gave his men a rest Sunday, August 4. They have passed through a strenuous six weeks and have in that time made a showing which suggests pennant calibre. A week from Sunday the club will need all the stuff they can gather. On that date they will travel to Brainerd where they will enter into battle royal with the top noticers who will fight with every ounce of strength they possess to keep the second place team from nosing them out. Manager Robbers has a neatly prepared map tacked up in his court showing the ways and means by which his club is to exchange places with Brainerd and complete the season in such a manner as to be entitled to the 'big rag.'"

The following mix-up has been ruled a strike by the sporting editor of the Missoulian under the caption "It Are." The fan stated the case this way: "The pitcher throws ball almost directly at batter. Batter, in attempting to dodge, involuntarily hits ball with bat and wall rolls foul. Is it a strike?"

Missoulian of August 3—Note of the game. A few of Bush's friends from Brainerd are here to watch him perform. He showed the home folks something yesterday. The friends are Moxie Mahlum and Sev Koop.

In the double header played August 2 the Missoulian gives much space to Bush and in the heading states: "Bush is in fine form. Brainerd boy pitches well, winning first hands down from Alex Remness and coming to the rescue in the ninth inning of the second encounter." The Highlanders, who have never been known to lose on ladies' day, whopped it to the Great Falls Electric twice on August 2, winning both games of a double-header. The score of the first was 7 to 1 and that of the second was 9 to 6. Bush pitched the first and shut the visitors out in all the rounds but the last. Collie Druhot worked in the second, giving way to Bush in the ninth, when he weakened a little. Druhot pitched good ball, however, and bequeathed the contest to Bush with the three-run lead by which the game was won.

Bush deserved a shoutout and came close to getting it. He opposed Alex Remness, just returned from the effete east. Alex pitched a peculiar sort of game; he struck out 10 of the Highlanders, but stock for an equal number of hits by them. Bush was not so strong on that whiff stuff, but allowed only five blows. In the ninth inning of the second game the Electric scored two and it looked as though Great Falls might win out from Missoula. "Captain Perrine, Manager Blankenship having been canned for disputing a decision, then sent in Bush to stop the riot. Bush did it. It was getting cloudy and his speed made the ball look like a buckshot.

The Little Falls Transcript makes the following prediction: "Based on expressions heard it is predicted that the Little Falls ball team will get mighty poor financial support next year from the fans of the city if performances are a continuation of this year's playing."

Cook, who pitched many games for Brainerd, on Sunday pitched for the West Side Athletics of St. Paul and shut out the North St. Paul Camerons by a score of 6 to 0. Cook pitched masterly ball in the Saintly city. All during the game only two North St. Paul men reached third base. Among the features was the double play by Cook, McCarthy's fielding and Shiely's sensational playing at second. The third and last game will probably be played next Sunday at Lexington park.

Are Ever at War

There are two things everlastingly at war, joy and piles. But Bucklen's Arnica Salve will banish piles in any form. It soon subdues the itching, irritation, inflammation or swelling. "The Sunset Gun"

(Edison)

It is a stirring human and deeply truthful picture of an old soldier's last Memorial Day. There are village scenes and a parade of veterans to the cemetery. He dreams of morning roll call, of battles, of the sunset gun, and of taps blown over the sleeping soldiers in bivouac on the battle field. It is a photograph of real life and in truth a masterpiece

"The Carpathia"

(Vitagraph)

This picture is another series of views of the famous ship, her officers, crew and life saving apparatus, and was taken at the time of the presentation of the New York American's check and of the loving cup to the savers of the Titanic castaways. It is well photographed and makes an interesting offering.

Last Words of the Great.

Half of the store of "last words" treasured by the curious are apocryphal. Pitt cried out not as the records have it as to the state of his country, but for a pork pie, and Napoleon III. uttered neither lamentation nor prophecy, but desired to know if one standing at his side had been at Sedan. The falling lips of the great are expected to frame some pious or patriotic aphorism, and if they fall then phrases are coined for them. "Deathbed avowals and moralizing," said Disraeli when his own end was in sight, "are a legacy counted upon by the English public." He did not contribute to the collection, but one phrase escaped him. "I have suffered much," he sighed. "Had I been a nihilist I should have confessed all." What lay behind those words no two critics can be found to agree.—Dundee Advertiser.

MELLIN'S FOOD

"I am positive that Mellin's Food saved baby's life, as no other food agreed with him and he was almost starved. For three months he didn't gain an ounce. He weighed eight pounds when we began with Mellin's Food and in three months he has gained almost ten pounds. Everybody thinks it remarkable that we raised our darling, and I can assure you we recommend Mellin's Food whenever we can."

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITS FROM FIFTY COUNTIES

Sixty per cent of the counties of Minnesota will be represented by exhibits in the agricultural building at the Minnesota State Fair this fall.

This is the most remarkable showing ever made in Minnesota or in any other state. It will afford an opportunity for citizens and prospective citizens to learn the character of the soil and the crop possibilities of any particular section of the state in which they may be interested and of the state as a whole.

In order to house these fifty exhibits it has been necessary to build a large addition to the agricultural building and even with this added room, it has been found necessary to do some very careful planning.

The county exhibits will all be properly taken care of, however, and each county will be given every opportunity to advertise its resources and to win the liberal prizes offered by the fair association.

MEN WHO MANAGE MINNESOTA FAIR

How the Work of Preparing for and Handling the World's Greatest State Fair is Divided.

Officers and directors of the Minnesota State Agricultural Society have been working for months and now on until after September 7, will work harder than ever to make the 1912 fair eclipse all of its predecessors. In view of this fact and so that exhibitors in the various departments may know with whom they will have to deal, there is given below a list of the men who manage the world's greatest state fair.

GREAT HORSE SHOW.

Lovers of horses and live stock will be given a rare treat in the nightly horse show to be held in the Live Stock Pavilion during the State Fair.

AN AVIATOR OF 2000 B. C.

Engraving on Stone of Old Babylonian Times.

Probably the oldest representation of flying man is that engraved on one of the Babylonian stone seals in the British Museum.

This seal dates back to at least 2000 B. C. From the characters depicted it is surmised that the work is of about the period 2800 B. C.

The tale illustrated is of Etana sitting on an eagle and flying from earth to heaven. Beneath Etana are a man with uplifted hand and dogs looking up, on the left a shepherd and his flock, at the top left corner a potter at work and beyond a baker baking cakes.

In the story it is stated that Etana looked down, and on the seal is represented by the artist what the passing life was as he actually saw it—an old, old story, since told otherwise and elsewhere by many an original writer, as, for instance, by Le Sage of "Asmodeus, le Diable Boiteux."

It has been a long way from Etana through Icarus and Lucian and Poe to Graham-White, but this old stone cameo shows that even these seers saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be.

And there is still a long way to look forward to carry forward Rossetti's version of the bird men of Nineveh:

We stare above from kerb and rut

And see against the dawn about

Strong men a-wing, with vans that jut

Like cones on fringes quaintly cut

In long millenniums bygone.

We follow flights that have been erst

To pass till on our sight shall burst

That last developed from the first,

That best evolving from the worst,

New London from old Babylon.

JOY.

Joy is the mainspring in the whole round of wheeling nature; joy moves the wheels of the great machine of the world; she it is that loosens flowers from their buds, suns from their firmaments, rolling spheres in distant space seen not by the glass of the astronomer.—Schiller.

SHIPWRECKED

A Story For Labor Day

By ETHEL EDNA SANGER

An ocean liner was coming across the Atlantic. In the main portion of the ship, fitted up with every convenience, every luxury, were millionaires and multimillionaires, some of whom had been prominent in the London social season, and not a few brought with them jewels, a fortune in themselves, that had blazed in many a ballroom in England's capital. There was one man aboard occupying a suit of apartments the price of which for a four days' trip would give a workman a comfortable home for a lifetime. These people, seemingly regardless of being suspended between the heavens above and the bottom of an ocean several miles beneath them, wore their fine clothes at dinner, and in the evening ate choice viands, drank the best wines, listened to music, flirted, even danced, while the hours glided happily away to the swish of the waves against the leviathan's side.

How different the underworld, which on shipboard is as far beneath the upper world as on land! In the steerage were many a family packed in their narrow quarters, eating the homeliest fare, and many, though accustomed to the ordinary wine of their country, were drinking only water, and that out of tin cups.

Among these steerage passengers was one Adolph Stahr, a Swede, a young man twenty-five years old, and his bride, Amelia, six years his junior. They had left their native country, their simple peasant life, to seek a home in the new world. Adolph was a mason by trade, and Amelia had worked in a factory in her native land, becoming expert at weaving. They had heard that in America the price of labor had, by the united effort of the laborers, been raised to what seemed to them a very high figure. Accustomed as they had been to living on a pittance, they believed that receiving these wages they could save money enough within a few years to build them a home in which they might live comfortably for the rest of their days.

And so, putting together all the money they had with something that their parents gave them, they set out on their long journey for what was to them a land of promise. Taking ship for England, they there re-embarked for America.

Half their journey across the Atlantic had been accomplished when one afternoon a fog settled down over the waters. Fogs on the sea are dreaded by mariners, and although the dressing in fine clothes, the feasting, the wine drinking, the music, went on among the passengers in the main stateroom, deep toned toot-toot of the fog whistle warning vessels that might be near. But at last all aboard the great ship except those whose duty it was to sail her were in their berths.

Suddenly there was a crash forward, the sleepers were awakened, all jarred, some thrown out of their berths. There was a mad rush to the deck, many going up in their nightclothes, where they found confusion and saw the lights of a ship drifting away from them. Fading into the fog they soon passed out of sight. The captain stood on the bridge coolly giving his orders, but few of them were obeyed. Above the babel was the wild cry for help from the wireless machine. From the first the crew realized that the liner had been hard hit, and the worst was feared. Those who were sent to examine the damage came running back to report that the foremost bulkhead was rapidly filling and that others astern of it were in danger of giving way.

An hour later when it was known that the ship was sinking the boats were lowered and the women and children put into them. The men of millions for the first time in their lives came to a position where the wife and child of an emigrant were permitted to step into a lifeboat while they themselves must remain to go down with the ship.

One parting among those who were to go and those who were to remain it is the province of this story to mention. Amelia Stahr clung to her husband and refused to leave him. Taking her in his arms, he carried her to one of the boats, put her in and before she could get out the boat was lowered and pulled away from the ship.

The gray of the morning revealed the leviathan a few miles distant, half sunken, resting on the water like a dying sea monster. Slowly she settled, watched by those in the boats, nearly all of whom knew that some loved one was soon to go down to death with her. Then raising her huge stern she plunged downward, and the place where she had been was but a part of the boundless ocean.

Safety came for those in the boats in the appearance of a steamer that had heard the wireless cry for succor. The boats were relieved of their burden, and those who had left the sunken ship were carried into an American port.

Amelia Stahr on reaching the land with her fellow sufferers received every attention. But for this the case would have been hard indeed. Nevertheless, it did not relieve the desolation of coming to a new land a bride widow. As soon as it was known what labor she could do, those entrusted with the work of assisting the women and children who had lost husband and father, secured her a place in a mill where she could ply her trade, and she became self supporting. Some time after her arrival in America a little girl was born to her, and although there was a melancholy in not having her husband with her at the time she welcomed the child as a memento of her husband and as a solace in her loneliness.

Amelia for awhile had a lingering hope that Adolph might be picked up and brought to land by some passing vessel, but as month after month passed and she heard nothing from him, the hope gradually died away. She was well skilled in her work and received every attention and encouragement, as did all survivors of that terrible shipwreck.

And so time passed. The widow worked hard and saved that she might educate her child. Amelia was still young and comely, with the fair hair and complexion of the people of the north and a pair of melancholy blue eyes. Suitors came, but she listened to none of them. From childhood she had been Adolph Stahr's sweetheart, and there was little prospect of her ever giving herself to any other man.

Six years passed. Little Lena Stahr, who was now old enough to be amused by pageants, when a Labor day came round besought her mother to take her to see the procession.

So Mrs. Stahr, putting on the child's best clothes, took her into the city and found a vacant stoop where they would be sufficiently elevated to see the marching men. There they waited.

The child was wild with that excitement children of her age display at some unusual occurrence, especially a parade. When necks were craned in the direction the trades unions were expected she would shout, "Here they come!" and when disappointed would begin to look forward for the next forecast of the approach. In this way an hour passed when a distant roll of drums was heard, followed by faint strains of martial music. Then Lena danced and clapped her hands and laughed with anticipation.

At last came the band, headed by the drum major, whose tossing of his staff was a delight to all onlooking children. Then the grand marshal, surrounded by his aids, passed by, followed by one union after another. When the masons passed suddenly a man darted from the ranks, pushed his way through the crowd that lined the sidewalk and, leaping over several small boys and disarranging the big hats of a number of women, clasped Amelia in his arms.

The man was Adolph Stahr, her husband. Amelia saw him and knew him before he reached her. Almost before his arms were about her she lost consciousness. Her first act after coming to herself was to point to Lena. Adolph understood, and, taking the child in his arms, the three were united in one embrace.

Stahr, after parting with his wife on the sinking vessel, began to think of himself. First he picked up a life preserver and put it about him. He was cool and took forethought for a possible saving of his life. He secured a bottle of water and some meat and bread. These, with a small flask of liquor he had brought with him on his journey, he stowed away as best he could on his person, then, returning to the deck, gathered what loose material he could to make a raft.

The latter stood him in good stead, for, embarking upon it, he managed to paddle himself far enough away from the ship not to be drawn down with her when she sank. He was among a very few who did so, and soon after the ship went down he became separated from that few.

He saw the steamer that came and took up those in the boats, but he had meanwhile drifted away from them too far to be seen or heard, but he rejoiced at the knowledge that those in the boats, especially his young wife, were saved. He drifted slowly on till there was nothing in sight except the sky and the ocean. The sea was comparatively calm and his bread and meat he kept dry till it had been consumed. This, with his bottle of water, kept him alive for three days—days of horror, but not bereft of hope. Ships passed, but they were too far away to be attracted. At last he kept what remained of his strength by an occasional draft from his flask.

He was passing into semiconsciousness when he was aroused by a shout and saw a small boat pulled toward him. He was taken on board a sailing ship bound on a trading tour around the world and found no means for leaving her and making America for a long while. When he did succeed in this his Amelia had been lost track of by those who had known of her landing.

Stahr did not return to the ranks. He found something more interesting than parading—a wife, and a daughter whom he had never seen, of whose existence he had had no knowledge. Between the two, the wife leaning on his arm, the daughter lovingly holding the hand of her newly found father, they went to the mother's home to lay plans for their future.

Since that fortunate meeting, that blessed reunion, the Stahr family take an unusual interest in Labor day, for it is their main anniversary. Had it not been for that parade that Mrs. Stahr and her daughter were looking at, their paths might never have joined. Stahr called their meeting a coincidence, but Mrs. Stahr, who is a devout Christian, looks upon it as a dispensation of a merciful providence. They have prospered, the husband and father having made money as a contractor, but he never fails to join in the parade on Labor day like an ordinary workman.

Just a Feeler.

The English visitor was getting impressions as to American education.

"And do you know your alphabet?" he asked of a small boy in the house he was visiting.

"Yep," said the lad—A, B, C, D, E, F, G, I, J."

"Hold on there, my little lad," said the visitor. "Haven't you left out a letter?"

"Yep," said the boy. "I dropped my H. I wanted to see if an Englishman would notice it."

"Pertness is a characteristic of the American child," wrote the Englishman later when he prepared his American notes for publication.—Harper's.

Has Three Climates.
Abyssinia has three climates, according to the altitude above the sea. In the low country or valleys bananas, dates, indigo, cotton and other tropical plants flourish. Elephants, lions, giraffes, zebras and gazelles abound. The intermediate zone recalls the climate of Sicily or of Andalusia, in Spain. There is good pasture for flocks and herds in the highest region.
